Zine Guide Correspondence

Hello folks at Zine Guide -

It was great meeting you guys in Bowling Green. It really spiced up the trip, though my bowels were not at their most compact for the next few days.

I promised to send you some email that I've been thinking about, I finally got around to it, though this will probably be shorter than it should be. (That's what SHE said!)

I wanted to write about the continual appearance of MRR at or near the top of everyone's WORST list. At first, I considered it a matter of pride. How great! Being hated by so many! What praise! But as I thought about it, I realized that these results are what so many zines are against: Thought conformity.

There are clearly worse zines than MRR. One pagers that cut and paste from other zines. Corporate shill zines-for-profit. Illiterate xeroxes published just to get free records. I see dozens of God-awful barely zine zines every week. How does MRR get to be "the worst?"

The answer is easy. Fashion. It's fashionable to hate MRR. It's fashionable to say it's gone down hill, become narrow minded, become unreadable. MRR has ALWAYS been narrow-minded. It was often hard to read. But it has changed. Even before Tim died, it went through various purges, expansions and repurges. Afterwards, it's gone through more editors than I've gone through cans of Schlitz. Each time, there are changes. New writers, new focuses.

But the comments in Zine Guide don't change. People who haven't seen an MRR in 5 years write like they know what's in it. Twenty years ago, MRR set the standard in zines. Many (most music) zines still have columns, reviews, interviews and ads laid out and organized in the way pioneered by Tim and co. So in some ways, anti-*MRR*ism is kids attacking their elders. In other ways, it's lonely zine nerds seeking the comfort of a common enemy. In most ways, it's fashion.

MRR is not perfect. After all, I still write for it. But it is constantly changing, and for that reason alone, it's worth looking at. Another reason to look at it might be to criticize it intelligently. But then again, for most of your poll responders, intelligence doesn't rank much above MRR on their favorites list.

Thanks for listening & hanging out,

Mykel Board, MRR columnist god@mykelboard.com www.mykelboard.com for monthly column

I did recieve [Zine Guide #5]. In fact I wrote to about 25 of them, however most came back to me, in fact today I got back a package from: Angst & Daisies, Aquatulle, Bad Reputation... So I don't know what's going on, but I am NOT happy.

Dave -

Yep, zinesters move VERY often, which is understandable considering that 57% of them are in their twenties. We do appreciate you forwarding info on the mail you had returned to you: Aquatulle's new address is 332 Bleecker St., #K-15, NY, NY 10014, phone: 917.207.6474, the email is still of the same, and their new address info is of course available on their webpage, which is listed in Zine Guide #5.

Apparently you didn't fully utilize the resources that Zine Guide presents you with. And Bad Reputation and Angst & Daises have since ceased publishing (and have left no forwarding orders or updated address info with the USPS).

Anyway, that is precisely why we need your fiscal support via advertising, so that we can come out at least every 6 months (and not every 9-10 months) and stay on top of the frequent and seemingly incessant zinester contact info changes.

So 'what's going on' is that we need less complaining and more support, this shit ain't easy, and even with me working 16 hours a day seven days a week (along with having 7-8 assorted parttime employees and interns), we struggle to remain — breathing above the constant paper stream. Thanks for your interest and concern.

An Open Letter to Zine Guide -

How are you able to call yourself "The Ultimate Independent Press Resource Guide?" I think that honor goes to Fandom Directory which actually publishes various zines throughout their publication. You call yourself a 'zine guide', but all I find is reviews for semi-magazines and real magazines. I don't consider UTNE as a zine, this is a magazine. I don't consider Filmfax a zine, this is a semi-magazine, I don't consider G-Fan a zine, I consider this as a semi-magazine. I definitely don't consider Fangoria a zine, this is also a magazine. In your zine guide, you tell the reader if we have a zine, to send in two issues so your review staff can look at them. I have done this in the past, I have never seen my zine featured.

So my question to you is, how can this be a zine guide when you don't feature any real zines? You should call your publication a semi-magazine/magazine guide. Being a true zine publisher, I have came in contact with many other zine publishers. I have been told that their zines have been submitted to your publication and not once have I seen any of their zines mentioned.

Sure, you may think I'm griping because my own zine wasn't mentioned. The answer is simply 'yes'. If you are truly the zine guide, all zines should be mentioned if they are bad or if they are good. At this point, I truly doubt it if you'll ever mention my zine, but that's okay. If I can get you to recognize the many zines out there, true zines, then I served my purpose. Zines don't have to be on paper, there are many electronic email zines out there too. Case example the CBEM (Comic Book Electronic Magazine) in which you can find their archived zines at: http://members.aol.com/ComicBkNet

If you were truly the ultimate zine guide you would mention every kind of zine in existence, like the Fandom Directory does. Has your staff ever looked for cyber zines? I already know the answer and it's 'no'. Then how can you be the ultimate in something if you don't go through all avenues of approach? The word 'ultimate' according to the Webster Dictionary means 'beyond which it is impossible to go; farthest; most remote or distant - greatest or highest possible; maximum; utmost'....can you truly say you are the ultimate?

A true zinester, like myself doesn't make a profit, we toil hard on our zine to make sure that it gets out to the paying customers that we have. We publish from our own homes. We mail out the zines ourselves. We make copies ourselves. A true zinester will tell you it's a labor of love. In the comic book subculture you will find many zines and I can't remember one supposingly reviewed zine in your publication ever being anything about comic books. Don't come back and tell me you reviewed Wizard. Wizard is a magazine, not a zine. A prestigious magazine like Writer's Digest had the heart and decency to actually review my zine The Peoples' Comic Book Newsletter in their zine scene section. Other magazines have supported my zine by mentioning my newsletter. It just strikes me as funny that this ultimate zine guide, doesn't have the heart to mention any real zines.

I know my comic book zinester associates have sent in their zines to your publication, so don't come back and tell me you never received any, I just don't believe it. You ignored their zine, just like you ignored my zine. If anyone were to ask me where they can find a true zine guide, I would never recommend your publication. I would refer them to the Fandom Directory. Your Zine Guide fails the test in every way possible.

Paul Dale Roberts, Publisher Jazma Universe Online! www.jazmaonline.com 5606 Moonlight Way Elk Grove, CA 95758 Silhouet98@cs.com

Paul

We appreciate your heartfelt feedback concerning our ultimate independent press resource guide. And you're absolutely right, anyone perusing our listings and reviews can readily see that we "don't feature any real zines", and that in fact, we have never added a single zine that anyone zine publisher has ever sent our way. However, we do find your suggested title of Semi-Magazine/Magazine Guide to be a bit clunky. Instead, we prefer the Jazma Free Directory or perhaps Guide To The Media: Mining Everything In Written Form Besides The Works of Paul Dale Roberts & His Three Equally Whiney Zine Publisher Friends. We'll let you know what we settle upon. Thanks for your help.

Subject: Legitimizing Hierarchy within the DIY community.

Zine Guide.

What is the point of Zine Guide. I talked to some zinesters about at the Anarchist Book fair and they thought the idea of ranking zine's was ridiculous. I talked to Scott Cowgill from smell of dead fish who had a low ranking. I also talked to the guys in my favorite zine, Harbinger, who weren't ranked at all. The consensus was that people who actually participate in your survey don't really have any taste in zines and so the lower your "rating" the more likely you are to have produced a zine worth reading by people who have better things to do than fill out your silly form. What are you guys trying to do? It's obvious you want to promote DIY literature, but I question this method. It seems to legitimizme some kind of hierarchy.

- Steve

P.S. take me off your lists please

Hello Scott Soriano:

Wanted to make sure that you received the latest issue of Zine Guide #5 we sent you a while back, as we want to be certain that we have updated mailing address info for you.

SUBJECT: RE: ZINE GUIDE

Hello Brent Ritzel:

Yes, I received the latest issue of Zine Guide. I did what I do with all unsolicitedmail, I threw it in the recycle bin. Please save your time and money and take me off your mailing list.

I would also appreciate it if you take me off your email list. As with letter post, I dislike unsolicited email.

Now, I know you are "offering" me a service: You would like me to send you money so I can run an ad in your magazine for a record label that I do in. And I know that this ad is supposed to increase my sales. I also know that you are wholly uninformed and uninterested in what I do otherwise you would know that I only press 300 copies of each record. If you would have known this before you started sending me your unwanted notices, you would know that if I was to advertise in you magazine I would be giving you money fornothing. You see, 300 records sell themselves, ad or no ad. So my $20 to $175 would be agift to you. Since I do not know you I am not inclined to send you a gift, especially since you have taken no time to figure out what exactly I am doing or what I an about.

Once again, please remove me from all your lists and grant me my right to live without unsolicited notices asking me to depart with my hard earned money.

Regards, Scott Soriano

Nah, makes me cranky...

Them things called zines...

Not too long ago I visited a place called the Java House, a quaint little coffee joint in the middle of Iowa City. This stop was sort of the period at the end of our night's excursions and adventures, 'our' being myself and several friends who had decided to find what fun we could in this college town. We trekked in from Chicago so as to read from our zines at a place humorously called "Iowa Killed Buddy Holly", a hole in the wall kinda place that has been selling zines, and doing a damn good job of it, for the past 5 or 6 months.

I patiently waited as my friends ordered up their cups of caffeine, all of us still dripping wet with the hotel pool water we had boldly decided to take advantage of. My friend Liam came over to engage me in conversation, and upon hearing that I didn't really drink coffee OR tea, asked me a simple, and nearly important question. "Just what vices do you have, anyway?" I sat and stared for a little bit, not really knowing how to answer. I hadn't ever thought about it, I guess. I'd tried some things growing up, but had quickly grown right out of them. Now days I don't drink, or do drugs, or smoke, or any of that. Not that I mind any of it, but it's just not my thing.

So, again I thought about his question. What vices do I have? I decided I didn't know him well enough to mention anything sexual, so that pretty much left only one other thing: zines. He chuckled a bit, and told me that it was a good one to have, and I was happy that he understood I wasn't making a joke. Zines really can become a bit of a vice, although I usually thought of it in different terms than that. Obsession, interest, hobby, passion, fixation, distraction, absorption... All these, and so much more it seems

I'm not sure how I got to the level of involvement that I'm currently at, but I've come to realize that a good percentage of my time and energy now days deals with zines in some ways. Between reading them, writing them, and trying to distro them, it's all that's on my mind some times. In fact it's ALL that's on my mind some times, and that's when it can actually get a bit annoying. No event or situation can be fully experienced merely for it's own value, but rather all experiences are filtered through zinester's perspective, with my inner-monologue on overdrive.

Everything becomes a potential story for my zine, which seems romantic at first, but, as previously stated, can become annoying after awhile. A simple walk to the store ends up going something like this: "Step after step I neared my destination, walking the same path I'd walked a thousand times before, and for the exact same reason. The wind was damp, but warm, and I knew that a storm would released upon this fair city by the time I emerged with my handfuls of grocery bags."

You see? Never-ending melodrama, constantly rattling around inside my head. I know, I know, could be worse, right? I really shouldn't complain so much. After all, everything I need to know about life, I learned from zines. Plus it's pretty liberating to know that the worse your day (or life) gets, the better your zine will be, so ultimately it's a win-win situation, right?

My Zine Experiment: Trading With Everyone Who Would Trade

This is a completely unsolicited study (our favorite kind) that Christoph Meyer of 28 Pages Lovingly Bound With Twine zine so graciously offered up for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Zine Guide. Seeing how Christoph did not include an email, as I don't believe he has one, I put his initial query letter in a special stack of correspondence to be answered via snail mail. This stack is, of course, still missing, but luckily I ran into Christoph at this year's Underground Press Conference in Bowling Green, OH. I expressed my enthusiasm concerning this painstakingly researched piece, and how I was surprised that I hadn't already done it myself. Mr. Mever hooked us up about a week later with a floppy disc via USPS that included the following...

by Christoph Meyer

I first stumbled upon zines around the end of 1993 while I was a freshman in college. During that time I ordered a dozen or so zines out of Factsheet 5 and bought a few more from a local zine-friendly bookstore. While reading them I began scheming to make my own zine. All of these freaks were making their own zines after all so why couldn't I? I could write just as well as many of the people I'd read and I had plenty to say. My plans came to nothing until many years later when in November of 2001 I finally put out the first issue of my first zine, 28 Pages Lovingly Bound with Twine.

During all those years I had no contact with the world of zines, so while I was laying out my first issue I had no idea how to contact other zine publishers. But while I was putting together 28PLBwT #1, I happened across a copy of Zine Guide #5. I was overjoyed to have a current listing of zines since my issue of Factsheet 5 dated back to 1993. It was a fortunate discovery. If I wouldn't have found Zine Guide I wouldn't have know what to do with my zine.

Even with Zine Guide I wasn't exactly sure what I should do to get my zine out to interested people. But while reading it I noticed that a lot of zine publishers would trade a copy of their publication for a copy of someone else's. A plan slowly formed in my mind: I would conduct a little zine experiment and trade with every single person in Zine Guide who said they traded. So after printing and assembling issue #1 of my zine I went through Zine Guide #5 and highlighted everyone who was listed as "trade" or "selective trade" and some (though not all) that were listed as "Free". I came up with a list of 81 people who would trade, a dozen who would selectively trade, and 15 who would send their zines for free and would presumably trade.

I hand wrote a note for each trade since I didn't want this to appear like a mass mailing. Each note was simple and almost identical and went something like this:

11-20-01

Dear Mr. or Ms

I read a review of your zine in Zine Guide and would like to trade a copy of my zine for a coby of yours.

Thanks. Christoph Meyer

I put a note and a copy of 28PLBwT #1 in each of my 108 envelopes and stamped each envelope with 57¢ of postage (that's $61.56 in try to write as many l.o.c.s as I have time for. postage alone). On the morning of November Post Office Box.

Box about a week later and it was stuffed full (I have the smallest sized box) and there was also a yellow card with my mail indicating that there were more letters that wouldn't fit. Once I got home I ripped into my pile of mail and read through everything. I was amazed at how downright friendly most zine publishers were. Most of the trades came with friendly notes that commented on my zine. And a few people wrote me long letters full of comments and advice. Those letters of comment (1.o.c.s) meant so much to me that I

I made a couple mistakes with my mailing. 20th I took my box full of envelopes to the Post First, I found that I shouldn't assume the sex of the Office where just a week before I had rented a zine publisher by their initials or if they have a name like Chris or Alex. Since every good experiment needs data I recorded how quickly each person got back to me. Since I traded with every trader in Zine Guide #5 I thought it would be a fun idea to record how many people who claimed to trade actually traded and of those who did trade, how quickly. Since the speed of mail delivery can vary by a day or two and since I wasn't checking my P.O. Box every day, I recorded the day each trade was postmarked rather than the day I received it. If the postmark was unreadable, as they sometimes are, I recorded the day I found it in my P.O. Box.

How reliable are zine traders? Here's the hard data, the results of my experiment:

Overall Results:

Replies: 57 52.8% Returns: 10 9.3% No Replies: 41 37.9%

The last trade that I received from this mailing was Roctober on 4-17-02. I'm assuming that anyone who hasn't traded by now isn't going to. There is a chance that there could be a mistake in my data. Human error creeps into any experiment. Mail is sometimes lost and my zine may not have reached one or two people and I may not have received one or two zines mailed to me. But, if you're thinking about trading with someone, you can check to see if they're on this list to see if they traded with me and, if they did, how quickly.

After being involved with zines for less than a year I'm hooked. I've put out 4 issues of my zine now and I've already got my next two planned out and mostly written. I love making my zine and reading other people's zines and I believe that trading is an easy way to share with other people. If a zine publisher can afford to trade he or she should. An important thing to remember is to provide a fair trade. If you value your little mini zine at $1 and someone else values his or her zine at $5 then make up the difference somehow. And if someone says that they'll trade, they should honor it. I try to quickly send my zine in trade with anyone who sends me their zine but with all the mail, clutter and papers in my home I'm sure I've accidentally stiffed at least one person out there. If you haven't heard back from someone in 5 or 6 months, a friendly post card reminder may be called for. If I owe a zine to anyone reading this, I'm sorry, it was just an accidental oversight. And if you happen to be a zine publisher listed as NR, did you ever get issue one of my zine? Because I never got a zine from you.

GRAMMAR RANT by Katherine Raz • ON MAKING ZINE GUIDE WORK by Brent Ritzel

for making this issue of Zine Guide #6 happen: cover price. Since we last raised the Zine Guide cover Katherine Raz (she conducted & compiled the zine distributor questionnaire, handled nearly all of the living has gone up by 11% accompanied by a 40% indexing and half of the mysterious eight-week-long increase in the cost of paper. Thanks for your help. 'final mixdown'), Terra Heinrichs & Kristy Mangel (they both are responsible for one third of all new Zine Listings, which means around three hundred each!), and Doug Lewandowski (the utility man, he handled anything thrown his way, and really deliv ered during crunch time). Further thanks go out to Jill Frazin (thanks for agreeing to move in with me [us]), Andy Slania (he took on the necessary but seemingly thankness duty of ad sales), plus the trio of recently departed Columbia College journalism interns Melanie Messerant, David Arter, Mike Hirtzer (who all created listings/wrote reviews for this issue of Zine Guide). Anyway, there are thousands more who help to make this publication possible, and most of them are listed somewhere in this publication.

We are always in need of more help, we couldn't possibly have enough people creating listings/writing zine reviews for our upcoming issues. We receive thousands of zines in the mail each year, and would like to document every single issue sent in if possible. That's why we need you to consider reviewing zines

In exchange for ten reviews (of at least 25 words each) Zine Guide will give reviewers a free copy of the issue the reviews run in. For twenty-five reviews (of at least 25 words each), Zine Guide will offer reviewers a complimentary 4-issue subscription. Hell, we'll send you a free copy of the upcoming Zine Guide #7 if you just send in a damn Favorite/Least Favorite Zine survey (complete with commentaries)! .

As you have probably noticed, it takes a long time to produce one of these issues. Since our first issue came out in December 1997, we've been averaging an issue every eleven months and two weeks. You may have also noted some differences between this Zine Guide #6 and past issues. In order to make room for a hundred or so new zines, we cut back on the number trust zines, just as I can't trust Time Magazine, someof zine covers we ran in this issue (we don't think you bought this for eye candy). Also, due to popular demand, we are no longer including defunct zines in the Favorite Zine Survey results, and we are also cutting back somewhat on their inclusion in the Zine Listings. Further, we've gone from putting the Favorite Zine Survey results in the front of the magazine (Zine Guide #1 thru Zine Guide #4), & the mid- be-all, end-all source of our information, and let's get tion is probably skewed.

Katherine Raz writes: Grammar Rant

I'd like to see more zines using correct spelling and grammar. Oh, right, I know it's not punk rock to care about punctuation, but for those of us who want to be taken seriously it's imperative that we command the language.

Look, there's a difference between "their," "they're," and "there." "It's" and "its" have different uses, and there's always "fewer" of something there can be too "many" of, and "less" of something of which there's too "much."

Bad grammar is getting my goat. For instance, recently Zine Guide received a prisoner's rights zine that stated that prisoners' 18th Amendment Rights were being violated. Friends, let's take a look at the Constitution. The 18th Amendment abolishes "manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors." In short, the 18th Amendment was prohibition. I think the article was trying to say the prisoners' 8th Amendment Rights were being violated (the 8th Amendment dealing with cruel and unusual punishment). I don't mean to be a grammar ninny, but in order for zines to be a respected force for social change, political justice, or just plain accurate reporting, they must adhere to the simple rules of journalism: spell things correctly, fact-check, and most importantly, cite your sources.

Zines challenge the mainstream media by presenting an uncensored voice. But why do we question only the mainstream media and not other zines? You can't just tell me "1.4 million children died last year of hunger," without telling me where you got that friends. information. Was it the CDC? Or the National Coalition for the Abolition of World Hunger? It matters where you get facts because then I can, as a reader, or a media critic, go back to that source and make sure you did accurate reporting. Otherwise I can't times, to be accurate.

I'd like to see more zine publishers making use of the library. You can call your local librarian on the phone and ask simple reference questions. For instance, "What is the gestation period of a hippopotamus?" or, "What political party controls dle of the magazine (Zine Guide #5), to the last four off our asses and do some real, accurate reporting. Even if you don't have a degree in journalism, it's possible. Here are a few pointers.

Grammar and Style

The Associated Press Stylebook and Libel Manual is a good place to start if you're looking for a reference book to answer questions about proper word usage. The AP Style Guide, as it's known, is updated almost every year and is a great resource for questions about style. For instance, is it "15 million," "15,000,000" or "fifteen million"? What is the abbreviation for "Massachusetts"? The book is used by the Associated Press as the final word on how to structure sentences properly for print. Zines, as always, are a bit more relaxed, but it is my suggestion that within your zine you adapt certain style guides as a way to maintain uniformity. Have all your articles filter through an editor who makes the final decision on

The "Libel Manual" section of the AP Stylebook provides the legal guidelines for print. It answers the question of just how much protection the First Amendment gives us. (An apt replacement for this book is The Chicago Manual of Style by John Grossman.)

A Writer's Reference by Diana Hacker is also a helpful resource for the proper citation of research. An entire chapter of this spiral-bound book is dedicated to the proper format of bibliography, as used by universities, lawyers, researchers and writers. The rest of the book is an easy-to-use grammar manual.

HOW TO GET INVOLVED WITH ZINE GUIDES

SUBMIT YOUR ZINE(S)

The only way for your zine to be included or updated in a future issue of Zine Guide is for it to be submitted directly to Zine Guide. THERE ARE NO DEADLINES FOR ZINE SUBMISSIONS. Just send it in. In fact, send two copies of each issue, as we now have zine reviewers & need stuff to send to them!

If you are surprised to find that your zine is no longer listed in Zine Guide, and you are still publishing it, send off a couple copies of your latest issue ASAP. Zine Guide, POB 5467, Evanston, IL 60204, USA.

RETURN A SURVEY / WRITE COMMENTARIES:

Surveys are located on the first two pages of this publication. Please feel free to remove, photocopy and circulate the surveys. You don't HAVE to fill out a hard copy & return it to us via snail mail to be included—you can email your responses to us at zineguide@yahoo.com. In fact, the best way to get your survey selections and zine commentaries/reviews published in future issues of Zine Guide is to submit a survey promptly via e-mail. While we encourage people to photocopy & disseminate the Zine Guide survey, we must ask you NOT to email the survey out to your email list.

Please be sure to write commentaries for all the zines on your survey. Share your unique knowledge and understanding of each of the zines you list with the tens of thousands of folks that peruse this publication.

If a zine is not already listed in Zine Guide please include their snail mail and email address (if at all possible) on your survey. In general we cannot list zines that we do not have contact info for, and there were A LOT of zine commentaries we could not run in this issue of Zine Guide because we lacked contact info.

Finally, if you have already returned a survey, please send an updated survey for the upcoming Zine Guide. Once again, we get more original insight from you that way, plus it makes Zine Guide's survey results all the more relevant.

WRITE ZINE REVIEWS:

We want critical reviews & analysis of zines for upcoming issues of Zine Guide. These are not listings, and these are not brief commentaries that folks scribble on their surveys, but actual knockout, dragout critical reviews. No length limitations, but we do require a minimum of 25 words per review. The zines reviewed do not have to be selected as "most favorite" or "least favorite" zines, and it is okay with Zine Guide if these reviews are also published in the reviewer's zine.

In exchange for ten reviews (of at least 25 words each) Zine Guide will give reviewers a free copy of the issue the reviews run in. For twenty-five reviews (of at least 25 words each), Zine Guide will offer reviewers a complimentary 4-issue subscription.

Get started now. Just email us at least ten zine reviews of zines of your choice (include complete contact info, along with issue number, cost, pages, etc.), and we'll set you up with free issue(s). If you can pen an intelligent opinion, email us at zineguide@yahoo.com.

WRITE FEATURES / CONDUCT INTERVIEWS:

We are also seeking extended pieces in any form, as long as it is relevant to the concerns herein (independent media/underground press). Email us with your ideas, we will pay for quality work.

OTHER WAYS TO HELP:

Collect and review your local zines/free publications • help place Zine Guide into your local libraries, record & book stores • organize & host your own local zine conference • open to any & all ideas • seeking interns for Chicago office • email us at zineguide@yahoo.com

Zine Guide Forum Introduction World's Top Zine Distributors by Katherine Raz

When you live in a big city, you can take for granted that there's at least one record store that buys and sells zines. In the sprawling rural environment, sometimes the most "alternative" publication you can find at local newsstands is Spin. Where the closest copy of Maximum Rock'n'Roll is 500 miles to the east, zine publishers and enthusiasts, of distros, with so many different polirely on outside sources for information about zines. In conjunction with zine review publications, zine distributors help to publicize the existence of zines that might not be seen otherwise. Moreover, distros can serve as a cataloque and order form for zine fans who aside from ordering zines directly from the publisher - would otherwise have no way of getting their hands on them.

The purpose of the zine distro is a one-stop shop for all your favorite zines. And the distros are as diverse as the publications they carry. The distros we surveyed carried anywhere from two to 200 titles. Some distros operate like exclusive clubs; to join, you have to be invited. Others accept submissions indiscriminantly. Some distros are genre-specific, carrying only Chicago-based zines, or female-published ones. There are distros that publish a printed catalogue of their wares, and some that sell their stock online only.

There were so many different types cies and missions, that we here at Zine Guide once again took it upon ourselves to calculate the minutiae of the zine world. The following are the results of a distro questionnaire we sent to over 300 distributors. The ones that responded to our survey are listed below, along with all the information you need to get your zine distributed with them, or buy zines from them. From these listings you'll be able to discern how many zines the distro carries, how many new titles they add every month, and how to submit to them if you're inclined (note: unsolicited submissions means you can send your zine without being invited, or asking first). You can also tell how long the distro has been in business, how many titles they carry and how many new titles they take on each month. You'll see if they pay on consignment (after the zines sell), or upfront (upon or before the receipt of product). When distros produce a printed mail order catalogue, we've included the circulation (so you'll know how many people it gets to). We asked distros to list their top selling zines to help give you an idea of the types of zines they sell. On top of that, distros listed the genres they do (and don't) carry, and some even added specific zines they'd like to distribute but currently don't. All this information was collected in an attempt to demystify the process of zine distribution. Zine Guide is distributed by nearly 30 distros, some of them very small. It helps put our magazine in every nook and cranny of the world. You may not be out for total world domination, but at least operating with a few distros can take some of the zine grunt work off your hands.

Musically similar to some of the more Roger Waters Pink Floyd incarnations but with an 'indie' vocal style that places it firmly in the fresh young [21st] century. The production values on this disc are of a high level and the eponymous BLUE should be shaken firmly by the hand Cris Baldwin

www.acidattackmusic.co.uk

The album itself is completely beautiful, not to mention haunting. This is the kind of record that will remain in your head for days. With the release of Holly's Song, BLUE should secure his place in the rock and roll industry. The album is a lean that not many artists is a leap that not many artists dare to take, but this musician went for it, and came out on top.

Josh Smallridge Clockwork-zine.homepage.com

BLUE has succeeded in creating something completely original, which is often tried but rarely done.

The whole album has a surreal quality with a Goth Rock twist. The vocals have a far off dreamy feel. He seems to be Ian Asbury's and Jim Morrison's gothic lové child

Ed Dandy, Artfag United ArtFagUnited.tripod.com

An experiment in musical storytelling that offers up enough treats, from enough styles, to give it a truly broad appeal. It is a well conceived and executed project of the type very few artists could pull off, for that he should be loudly applauded. Check it out. Limeygit

A Love A Death A Haunting

A Murder

A Gothic Drama in Four Acts

Quite the experimental genius, BLUE has taken independent music to the realm of a conceptual art form.

If you are into something different, something risky, something a bit off the conventional edge, you will embrace this CD.

It is a revolutionary presentation that is just out-of-this-world.

If you like the somber tunes of Pink Floyd or Radiohead, BLUE may be a musician for you to follow. Syndicate CD Reviews SyndicateCD.com

The album is a progressive rock opera, twisting and tumbling from scene to scene with strange visions and mysterious lyrical pasšages. The styles of songs change with the moods, contrasting the haunting reflections of "Daffodils" or the angry techno of
"Private Angel" with the final closure of
"Requiem for Two"
and "Pieces".

Zine Guide zine donations:

What happens to the zines when we're done with them

The scene at Anno Domini gallery in San Jose, CA on January 4, 2001, during "The Art of Zines" show that featured hundreds of zines donated by Zine Guide.

Zine Guide has never thrown away a single zine that it has received for review. In fact, since early 2000 Zine Guide has donated nearly seven thousand read & reviewed zines for further public use and perusal.

During March 2000 Zine Guide donated 4503 zines and other independent publications to the Popular Culture Library at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. Odds are if you sent us a zine during 1998-1999, it now has a permanent home in BGSU's excellent & extensive underground publication collection.

For the third year in a row we'll be donating around 400 zines to the Anno Domini art gallery (San Jose, CA) for their third annual "The Art of Zines" show. The first of these events, which took place on January 4, 2001, showcased the zines by tastefully and conveniently displaying them in open plastic pockets along a sprawling wall that had the First Amendment emblazoned across the top (SEE PHOTO ABOVE). This arrangement encouraged both reflective onlooking and hands-on study of the curious cultural artifacts, as we're sure will be the case in this fine gallery's upcoming show early January, 2003.

In the continued spirit of wanting to bring as much exposure to the zine world as possible, we would like to offer larger zine collection donations to other interested parties. Whether you're running a zine library, or just putting on a zine-related event, we would like to make hundreds of zines available to you, as long as your plans involve sharing the collection with others and spreading the reality of zines among the uninitiated. Here are our terms:

Event:

REQUIREMENTS FOR DONATION: we need to receive a written event proposal.

YOU MUST BE WILLING TO ACCEPT: at least 200 zines, Zine Guide's choice, you cover the cost of shipping, & make Zine Guide available for purchase at your event.

Library:

REQUIREMENTS FOR DONATION: reference to your webpage or literature concerning your organization. YOU MUST BE WILLING TO ACCEPT: at least 500 zines, Zine Guide's choice, you cover the cost of shipping, & send letter acknowledging our donation.

Send all inquiries, questions, comments, proposals to: Zine Guide, ATTN: Brent Ritzel • POB 5467, Evanston, IL 60204 • zineguide@yahoo.com • 773.269.2918

Zine Listings • Introduction by Brent Ritzel

to ensure that all zine contact info is as up-to-date and accurate. In fact, every zine address and email that was listed in Zine Guide #5 was sent mail at least twice. Changes in zine contact info can be found within most Zine Listings under 'old address', 'old email,' etc. This is done so the reader can better determine if the contact info they have is still

We receive several requests each issue to stop printing this 'old info.' Please realize that our readers are aware NOT to send emails or snail mail to OLD addresses. We print old addresses so readers have a way of judging the veracity of data that might contradict our Zine Guide listings. If you publish a zine and do not want certain specific information published, let us know, and we'll gladly oblige your wishes.

Remember, the content of each and every issue of Zine Guide is dependent upon readers and zinesters returning surveys and sending in their zines...without everyone's input, Zine Guide is not possible. More importantly, if you do not care for - or feel disillusioned with - the content of Zine Guide, then it is up to you to do something about it and change it. See page fifteen or the inside back cover for further ways to get involved with Zine Guide.

[Also please keep in mind that just because we publish the Zine Guide doesn't mean that we are omnipotent & are instantaneously aware of changes in addresses or emails, or if a zine has ceased publishing. This thing only works with your input & feedback.]

Beyond just providing marketing info for PR firms, with Zine Guide we are attempting to provide a document of independent publishing activities through their continuing expansion and evolution. The zine revolution is not over, and it will not end as long as the First Amendment is still in effect. The nature of this revolution is, like anything else, an organic process > documentation of independent publishing, we are also going to continue to include zines in the listings that are on their last issue, on hiatus, or even defunct. However, as you can probably tell from the survey results (which are based solely on compiled surveys returned to Zine Guide by readers & zinesters), we've ceased including completely defunct zines in the Favorite Zine Lists. Keep in mind, just because a zine publish- interests.

Guide we have taken great efforts and creates new forums of communication does not mean that it is not still enjoyed, serves and networking.

With this sixth issue of Zine that morphs, resonates, reacts, informs es sporadically or ceased publishing years ago as inspiration or sells. Of course I would highly In light of our mission to provide a historical recommend contacting defunct zines or publications on hiatus or on their last issue before sending them money. Common sense must be used when utilizing this guide.

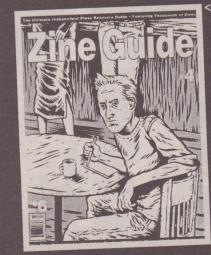

> Anyway, enjoy the zine listings, and be sure to check out the five indexes [organized by Band/Musician, Person, Subject, Place/Geographic Location, Record Label/Advertiser] at the tail end of this issue to assist you in locating your

"Just about as punk rock as one gets. For a dollar, I was sent two issues and a number of punk rock stickers. In these issues (issues # 11 and #12) were interviews with such bands as Pennywise, Welt, the Burning Heads, The Odds Are Against Us, and Zero Down. Much of the interviews are by a woman named, Wendy Devil. There is no color, the paper is a cheap newsprint, and there are enough spelling and grammar errors to make a junior high English teachers have a seizure. However, the inter-views are fun and the reviews are decently written and informative (if you're mostly into contemporary punk rock)." - Ryan McKee

X "At Home With You" CD/LP

Based around the creative core of singer/guitarist Steven Lucas and former ROSE TATTOO bass player lan Rilen, X have churned out a devastating catalog of fractured rock songs and solidified their reputation as one of Australia's most intense live acts over the past twenty years. MORPHIUS ARCHIVES is proud to present the first US pressing of their monumental sophomore album, "At Home With You", on LP and CD - a time-less album that has weathered the years as defiantly as THE SAINTS' "Eternally Yours", THE BIRTHDAY PARTY'S "Prayers On Fire" or RADIO BIRDMEN'S "Radios Appear."

"[X] took rock-n-roll and, years ahead of their time, created a unique hyper-charged sound that still hasn't been bettered for power and pure grunt." - Matt Dickson, 'Spiral Scratch', 1997

UK SUBS / NATIONAL RAZOR, f.d.i.c.

"Gruesome Twosome Vol. 1" Split CD

The UK Subs started in the winter of 1977 and have been playing punk rock ever since. One of the most known and notorious bands of the era the Subs have been going strong for well over 20 years. If you aren't familiar with these guys you may as well go home and kill yourself today. Some of the best and catchiest Subs material to date. A must have for any UK Subs fans.

The bastard offspring of many great Baltimore bands has lead to this melodic, yet abrasive, catchy as hell punk rock machine. National Razor is more addictive than heroin and just as good for you. After just one listen you will find yourself singing the songs while in the shower and you will come to terms with your new founded addiction. Catchy enough for the Pop-punk kids and Abrasive enough for Street-Punkers, National Razor has something for everyone.

"Amusing, poignant, and unusual comix detailing the editor's emotional and interpersonal problems in a way that actually isn't boring. The art is pretty good and the pages are crammed full of exquisite lettering. My main complaint here applies to most zines of a personal nature: it seems to blow up every small issue into a cataclysmic event.
Then again, this is really someone's life, warts and all, and knowing this is part of the attraction of reading a personal zine." - Mike Day
"You know when you're at a party and you walk

"You know when you're at a party and you walk into a conversation that is already going on. And you want to be a part of it because the people who are a part of it are cool. So you just sit there, listening, nodding occasionally, hoping you pick up on enough facts to become involved. Well, that's what enough facts to occome invoiced. Weak, unta's what I felt like reading this comic zine. I ordered it because I saw a picture of the cover and thought it looked cool. I got issue #13. The cover looked comical. The name sounded comical. It is a comic, but it is the polar opposite of anything funny. From what I picked up there were two rapes (one in the recent past and one the not-so-resent past), the main char-acter is a severe alcoholic (mostly because she was acter is a severe acconous (mosty occuses sine was raped), and her lesbian girlfriend keeps breaking up with her because of her alcoholism. Good art, but like I said, I had no idea what's going on. If you want to read this zine, you're going to have to get Issue 1 to fully grasp it." - Ryan McKee

Vol. 4, No. 1, $?, 40 pp, standard, DTP, polished, offset on heavystock newsprint, full-color cover, Seattle rock zine; interviews with the Go, the Dictators; articles about the Bellrays, the Humpers, Big John Bates, Right On!, Kinski; essay about "Chihuahua Rock;" brief "I Was in a Band With Jeff Probst from Survivor!:" reader letters; music review

"Rackfire is a music zine out of Seattle that covers the punk and indie rock scenes in the American Northwest. There are interviews with bands based elsewhere, but the emphasis is on the local folks and Backfire also has an unusually high number of recording studio ads for a music zine, so it also serves as a resource guide for Seattle musicians, of which there are many, according to reliable sources. The regional bias of Backfire shouldn't scare off readers from outside of Seattle, though; it's nothing at all like a dreary MRR scene report." - Tom Deflumere

"Here's a great rock/punk zine straight outta the damp town of Seattle. Good interviews, good damp town of seature. Good micrywes, good reviews, a COLOR cover. Hell, there's even a picture of Tad on damn near every page. There's no way to go wrong with a layout like that. Interviews with The Humpers and The Go, and the vocabulary word of the month is 'Chilhuahua Rock.' This consists of tripe like Godsmack and the Deftones. The article itself rips corporate, white, nu-metal a real asshole, so it can not stop shitting out of its mouth. This here is a great zine, by a great lady." - Pinky Royale

This thick, obtuse, absurd, bizarre, anarchic tome focuses on DIY noise, outsider, and avant garde music with a prose style that is just as unorthodox as the music it describes. It comes with a CD of the featured bands, none of which you've probably heard of before. I really think this zine could benefit from a little clarity, rather than the cool distance often employed by the avant garde, but it's a great resource containing information you're unlikely to find duplicated elsewhere." - Mike Day

www.berzerker.net/zine #1 ("My Life In Your Back Pocket"), $2 ppd, 40 pp, mini, offset with glossy cover; cover artwork by Fred; first issue personal zine with stories from Durwood's life; includes BerZerker postcards or stickers "My Life At Your Feet"; wide open and 'mostly' factual tales about the neighborhood bully, bladder and various bodily dysfunctions. masturbation, being gay and being a gay parent, pro-choice +gay + man, family, smoking up and homing pigeons, wide open and inspired by "I'm Johnny and I don't give a Fuck'

"Well, the name was a tad misleading, as I was ready for some serious Berzerking; smashing windows, pyromania, mass destruction, freebasing Tylenol gelcaps, etc. I didn't find any of that. Berzerker is a computer guy with an off center ass-hole (I didn't make that up) who wants to adopt his lover's children, but is having problems due to his love's clinical, but is large problems use with esmall minds and Catholic mentality that run this doomed society. A story on learning sex ed on the playground was kinda funny. On a whole, it wasn't my bag. There wasn't enough madness." - Pinky Royale

Durwood's Favorite Zines (Spring 2001 survey):

"One thing makes this zine so damn cool: Jack

"One thing makes this zine so damn coot: Jack Rabid. The man either never sleeps or is some kind of punk rock super computer. He pretty much does all the writing, editing, and publishing duties of this monster music publication, along with taking on all the bullshit duties of getting the with taking on all the bullshift duties of getting the zine out to the public. He's the drummer for the bands Springhouse and Last Burning Embers. He's on the radio every other Thursday. And still manages to have interesting rumors about his death surface. But really, I think the coolest thing ueath surface. Our reality, it mink the coolest ming is that when I ordered a copy of The Big Takeover he took the time from his tight schedule to write me a personal letter. True, some of it was about trying to sell me stuff (a zine subscription, a Last Burning Embers EP), but most of it was about the free audio tape he included and how he'd only been to Indiana (where I currently live) once. No other zine (no matter how small) has taken time to do that for me lately. If you like older punk rock, get your articles from someone who was there.

Jack Rabid was there (or makes a very convincing lie abouf being there) during the birth of the scene in New York. His view on current music is weighed heavily by this. The zine isn't just about punk though (actually far from it), but since Mr Rabid has been in the music scene for so long, I really trust his knowledge and taste. Issue 49 is great with a big fat interview with Iggy Pop. Other interviews include everyone from The Other interviews include everyone from The Creation, Echo & the Bunnymen, and The Damned to Death Cab for Cutie, Built to Spill, and Beulah. There's enough reviews, of albums and live shows, to send you to the hospital, so take in small doses." - Ryan McKee

"Incredible interviews, encyclopedic knowledge of "Incredible interviews, encyclopedic knowledge of all styles of music and excellent writing throughout. While Jack has a dismissive attitude about any hardcore besides the Bad Brains or Bad Religion, he gets interviews with some incredible subjects and it takes me weeks to get through an issue."

- Al Quint, Suburban Voice

"This is the god of all zines. The Big T always supplies interviews and features on my favorite major label artists (of course as well as indie stuff). The writers know about the music, but sometimes, this is overly exemplified in their album reviews. Many end up being short stories filled with information. Sometimes I just want the damn point. Was it good or not? Receiving this in the mail is a joy. I usually end up fighting with co-workers and friends on who gets to read it first but no matter how long the wait, it's well worth it. This zine never disappoints?'

- Ghazal Sheei, Revelation Records

"I'm not really all that into punk rock, so the fact that I like this zine anyway probably says some-thing. Jack Rabid obviously has a great passion for music, and it comes through in what he writes. The music covered here does venture outside of just punk rock, but it doesn't go far enough into the truly strange for me, though they do cover some great bands like The Flaming Lips and Radiohead. The personality of this one is what makes it very much worth reading." - Mike Day

"I got the impression from reading this zine that they're the head-honcho of zines from our neighthey re the nead-noncho of zines from our neigh-bors to the north. I'm not saying that the pages were oozing with pretentious dribble, they just present themselves as very confident. For five American dollars, I was sent an issue with a glossy full color cover, and 72 black and white newsprint pages. As Americans, we tend to forget that there's other North Americans, such as people from Canada and even a little place called Mexico. I'm not saying that's all right, but hey, let's admit it, not saying that's all right, but hey, let's admit it, that's the way most of us our brought up.

So, it's good to pick up a zine such as Broken Pencil and familiarize yourself with the haps north of the border. The editors of this zine take a lot of national pride in their zine culture and independent arts. They keep it real up north reviewing zines (including a few American and International ones), art, books, music and film and video reviews. Then features on artists, a large story on the wrestling subculture, some ficand video reviews. Then features on artists, a large story on the wrestling subculture, some fiction and poetry, a Morphogenesis thing that I am not even close to understanding (nor does it look interesting enough to try), and a rant. The back-yard wrestling story really didn't interest me. I caught the same story on MTV about a year ago and they had even bigger white trash kids, making it much funnier. The rest of the writing was tight, except the rant didn't make much sense and the fiction wasn't anything really worth mentioning. A few of the poetry, which means that if you normally like poetry, you might not like them). I didn't like the music editor's (Terence Dick) reviews. For the most part, he was more interested in hearing himself than telling us anything intelligible about the band. However, the other writers' reviews were all really decent. Overall, a writers' reviews were all really decent. Overall, a good zine. I didn't understand a few inside things (probably because I'm not Cana-dian). Alas, if only this zine were American." - Ryan McKee

RECENT BOOKS FROM

AUTONOMEDIA

PO BOX 568 BROOKLYN NY 11211-0568

In Lab U.S.A., Kevin Pyle graphically examines the secret and loathsome history of government-funded medical experiments on unsuspecting, and usually marginalized, citizens. Sue Coe called it "A docucomic that reveals bad science in the language of great art." $17.50, available now. See more online at

WWW.AUTONOMEDIA.ORG/LABUSA

Over the course of eight essays, Digital Resistance by the Critical Art Ensemble develops the principles of tactical media, the "molecular interventions and semiotic shocks that collectively could negate the rising intensity of authoritarian culture." $14, available now. Read more at www.AUTONOMEDIA.ORG/DIGITALRESISTANCE

In 15 essays on global politics, the Midnight Notes Collective's Auroras of the Zapatistas aims to illuminate the slow and often unconscious formation of the anti-globalization movement, creating what the Zapatistas call "the Fourth World War." $14, available now. Read more at WWW.AUTONOMEDIA.ORG/AURORAS

Autonomedia has been publishing and distributing books in oppositional culture since 1982. Our website includes a full booklist, an events calendar, and links to kindred projects around the world. "This zine contains columns, zine reviews, and a whole lot more. In the intro Rachel apologizes for all of the "mushy things" in the zine, and although there were a few of those (including how her fiancé proposed to her at a punk show), there was plenty of variety covered in the topics. A good mix of entertainment, like the showcase of their cars, as well as serious issues, such as a reprint from Girls are Equal Too: The Teenage Girl's How-to-Survive Book and much feminist writing, round the zine out. Rachel is a Christian, and includes a little pull out piece on her faith in the zine. There is also a DIY page that tells you how to make your own lip gloss (among other things). I highly recommend Chechel Angel. The writers have the courage to express even unpopular viewpoints, which is a rarity." - Jill Herbst

"This zine likes itself a lot and it shows. The cover price is $6.95 and in Issue 16 they take a lot of jabs at a lot bands with The Shit List. Some of these are warranted, some seem to have no reasoning. That said, I do really like the concept of this magazine: music and comedy. One main ingredient I think is missing from the zine world is the fact that there's not more humor-based zines. Who doesn't like to laugh? I realize it's difficult to make people even crack a small smile through the printed word (frankly, I'm thankful that some people don't even try) and it's good to know Chunklet is out there doing their best. This zine's humor really makes it stand out from the blur of other music publications." - Ryan McKee

"Cathy likes Dr. Pepper, loves her kid, and wants to be hip, but is a mom, and has to deal with that sometimes-precarious balancing act. This is a journal really, of thoughts and stuff that floats through the mind of a hip mama who lives in Jackson, CA. If you've ever been there, you've never wanted to go back. She has no alone time, and she comes to terms with the fact that she likes Martha Stewart. There still is hope, and it comes out through her thoughts on her child and the out through her thoughts on ner cnia and the love she holds for her. This is the last issue of Copycat, but she promises to resurface with another zine soon, which is good, as it seems to provide some relief for her. Keep up the good work."

"Daddy-O is a mini-zine all about how Rachel feels about her father leaving her mother when she was three. Rather than still being angry with her dad, she forgives him, and describes in the zine what it was like to have to separate her time between two parents while she was growing up (and still today). Throughout Daddy-O she describes moments when she wished her father was there and he wasn't and how she felt at various times in her interaction with her dad. Definitely an interesting read, if only to see the effects of divorce (and remarriage) on one person." - Jill Herbst

'Oh, life can be so simple that it's goddamn difficult. That's one of the great paradoxes that comes with being human. It can be greatly reassuring to know that it's not just you who can't figure out where thee instruction manual is hidden. Delfina V. gives us a small (¿autobiographical?) look at life, it's simple joys, and its overwhelming confusions. This is part 3, and it's a ciffhanger, of sorts. She created a character that I can care about, and I'd like to see things work out for her. We're all in this mess together, and whether it's Green Day or burning down road-side billboard advertisements that centers you, we still all need to hold on to each other. The best part of the mag was an argument between S-Ro and the Video Guru over whether or not The Blair Witch 2 was a steaming hunk of phlegm or not. Of course, they never really came to any conclusions and just ended up 'yelling' the whole time. Much like real movie or music or any thing debates. At least it was honest. I also learned that They Live and Prince of Darkness were going to be deleted from John Carpenter's DVD releases, so if you like them, pick 'em up now. "I have to say that I'm kind of disappointed in where this zine has gone over the past couple years, though I do still enjoy reading it. Giant Robot, a zine about Asian (sub)culture and music, has been edging progressively closer to the mouth of the yawning glossy void that has swallowed up AP and others. The coverage of anime & video games seems a deliberate attempt to make the size. games seems a deliberate attempt to make the zine more mainstream. There's nothing wrong with anime and video games, but I liked reading about punk rock, martial arts extremists, and abberant Asian sex practices even better. Still worth it if you're interested in the subject matter, though no longer the essential read it once was." - Mike Day

"Being betrayed by your own body is the dominant theme of this zine. It is understandable why the editor would feel that way. She may have ovarian can-cer and certainly seems to have spent more than her fair share of time in the hospital or at a doctor's office. Mixed in with journal style entries on sickness and dreams is another dominant theme—that of being a woman of color in a sexist and racist society. There is an interesting piece called "scenes in isms" describing incidents of sheer ignorance on the part of others. One such example: "So you're Puerto Rican & Mexican, hub?... Hey my mon's sister married a Puerto Rican from Roma, Texas. Sister married a Fuerro Rican from Roma, Lexas. You think you know him?" There are also some very interesting perspectives on life as a Chicana in a White world. Some phrases are in Spanish, but she includes a brief translation page for those challenged with Espanol." - Jill Herbst

PRINTING AND DESIGN FOR INDEPENDENT RECORD LABELS AND BANDS SINCE 1994

CHECK OUT OUR LOCAL SECTION WE'LL EVEN SELL YOUR BAND'S MUSIC! FREE MP3S, TOUR DATES, BAND NEWS, RECORD LABEL NEWS..

GO TO WWW.INTERPUNK, COM

-PROMOTE YOUR MUSIC -DISTRIBUTE COMP CD'S -GET A NEW BUZZ ON FOR FREE!

Maybe you're in a band and you've got a killer CD. Or you run a label with a bunch of killer CD's. Maybe you just want to create a buzz and get your music out into people's hands and find out what they think. With dollarcd.com you can give potential fans a chance to hear your music on CD for ONE DOLLAR. And it costs you nothing!

Give 'em sampler CD's, live sets, demo's, or even audio newsletters or Holiday CD's. Or maybe you publish a webzine or a print zine and you put together a compilation CD. Through dollarcd.com, when your readers order the CD we produce it on demand and ship it out. Plus, you know exactly who's getting your CD so you can put 'em on your mailing list and find out how they liked it or whatever. You've probably got mp3's or RealAudio files on your web site, but you don't really know who's listening.

You've probably got your CD selling online and they've set you up with preview tracks, but you still don't know who's playing those samples and you want to contact them and tell them what a great CD you've got! Not to mention the fact that you're not reaching tons of people who don't do the web — people can order from dollarcd.com on OR offline, so you can poster your town and drop cards to attract new fans, readers, or whatever.

Or sticking a CD in a print zine is a pain and you can't do it if you're runnin' a webzine anyway. You want a cool way to reach these people. You want to find out who's listening. And since your dollarcd will be listed with lots of other dollarcd's, you could get lots of new fans that way too.

So that's why we've started dollarcd.com. We did it for a webzine we publish (homemademusic.com), we did it with a group we record with (tapegerm.com), and did it with a label we run (blindmime.com). It's easy and it works.

Our CD's look great. We put 'em in a glossy card sleeve with room for your own art and other info in black and white. So check it out. Setup is FREE. Each CD gets its own page and you can offer as many different CD's as you want. Visit the site for all the details.

"Pop culture/music magazine. This is a thick zine without many ads, but I only found two articles worth reading. A five page 'what we're tired of' list begins the issue, and even though 88% of the entries on any list of that sort always fall into the category of 'goes without saying' (HM's list has obvious targets like Trekkies and Hard Rock Cafes), I nodded my like Trekkies and Hard Rock Cafes), I nodded my jaded head in agreement enough to keep me rapidly skimming for the full five pages. After a promising start, nothing else grabbed me-boring interviews with 70's child actors, boring band interviews, boring CD reviews, articles on toy collecting and comic books and video games, none of which I care about The nadir was nine damn pages wasted on a list of goofy potential band names. Other zines do this kind of thing much better, and there are too many zines covering this termin to begin with 100 ms. of thing much better, and there are too many zines covering this terrain to begin with." - Tom Deflumere

"Have you ever been head over heels in love with someone and have it all fall apart? Remember the aftermath, the period of questioning everything and trying to place blame, or reworking dozens of scenarios in your head trying to find the one thing you could've changed to make it all better?
Zhenelle of Born Ready zine can empathize.
Inhale/Exhale is what would have been Born
Ready #3. and takes you to the place. Ready #3, and takes you to the place you've been before—the time of reflection on love lost. If you are one of the lucky ones who have been spared heartache, Inhale/Exhale offers a painful glimpse of what you're missing. If you've already suffered (or are now), get it and read the words of a fellow heart that's been broken." - Jill Herbst

In high school, I spent what little money I had going to punk shows, moshpitting to prove I was as tough as the jocks that chased me around school, and buying Epitaph that chased me around school, and buying Epitaph and Fat Wreck Chords albums. I would wonder why while the audience at the shows were my age, the oldest people there were the bartender and the band members on stage. Well, I grew older and realized why: you get tired, and your CD catalogue begins to sound onotonous. Enter the need for Jersey Beat. I live nowhere near Jersey, but nowhere near Jersey, but love Jersey Beat. Editor and publisher Jim Testa, a walking punk rock encyclopedia, includes articles and reviews covering the best in punk rock. Issue 70 also included well-thought-out editorials on Sept. 11th, funny essays (such as David Brown's "Major Labels Need Help Too"), and covers other non-punk artists that need to be covered. The switcher see elented towards the nulk rock lover. non-punk artists that need to be everete. The reviews are slanted towards the punk rock lover, but are done by enough people that it doesn't get repetative. Generally, comics turn me off, but m@b has a very keen eye for the absurd that exists in our nas a very seen every order a small dual exists in our everyday lives, things that we rarely give much attention to. Blackett's comics are akin to a Jim Jarmusch film—ordinary and quiet things, very mentimes non-occurrences, are skillfully rendered to show us more than any full color $300,000,000 film (or comic strip) can ever hope to. Blackett displays the nuances of reality in a way that too few artists can get a handle on. Some of the characters physical can get a nancie on. Some of the characters physical reactions, though barely noticeable, can carry more weight than any Batman "BAM, OOF, ARGH" frame could ever hope to. Bill Waterson (Calvin and Hobbes) is the only other artist that I've encountered who could catch subtle expressions and make you who could catch subble expressions and make you laugh like m@b. The zine revolves around a floundering slacker and his everyday un-escapades. It's things like this that makes some people think that, "Hell, this is just some guys stupid diary. I can do this with my eyes closed." When the attempt is made though, the hapless detractor soon realizes that it takes a sharp eye and a fine wit to render that which we could easily write off as nothing, into something.

"Not since Calvin & Hobbes has a comic pos sessed such a great combination of off-the-wall humor and bittersweet insight."

"The most comprehensive review section I've found." - D. Arter

"Poor? Want the most bang for your buck? That's the American way, right? Well, it's damn hard to buy a subscription to Magnet music magazine and not feel that you're getting away with something. It's like cheating on your taxes and not getting caught (not that I would know, I got caught). A year subscription (six issues) will set you back $14.95, two years is $24.95. With that you get to choose a free CD from a list of ten. And it's not just some sampler that record companies give out for free anyway, it's a full-length from an artist that you would spend $15 on even if you weren't buying you would spend $15 on even if you weren't buying the subscription. So, pretty much, you're getting six issues for free. Your parents would be proud.

Then, if that weren't enough, you get a free CD with each issue. Each Magnet Music Sampler has twenty songs by twenty good indie bands. Hell, you might not like every song, but it will give you something to listen to while thumbing through 120 professional, glossy, full-color pages. As Jason Foster from Monitor Records said in Zine Guide #5 "Yeah, black and white is punk and hip, but my eyes can see color as well." But just because the Magnet looks high end, doesn't mean they've sold out to the man (like Alternative Press). They still run stories on some of the best musical artists, both past and on some of the best musical artists, both past and present. Each article is well-written and well-researched. While reading it, I can just feel the musical knowledge seeping out. Sometimes it makes me feel dumb, but, hell, at least I'm learning. The album reviews are written by a number of people, which mixes it up nicely. When a publicapeople, which makes it up interly. When a publica-tion only uses a couple reviewers, things get too predictable. Every writer is not necessarily on par with the next, but at least they're not unoriginal. One complaint is that they have as much ad space as a Rolling Stone or Spin. I suppose you can't have it all, and at least the ads aren't for the next Britney Spears album. Also, I wouldn't pick it up if you're looking for much in the way of Jazz, Hip-Hop, or Techno. Magnet is predominately Rock 'n' Roll's offspring." - Ryan McKee

"Features good bands but the writing is too press-release nothingness with no balls. Getting too slick as well." - Greg Turner, Rodent Records

I"Southern California's Number One Music Source" #2; "Anyone with an interest in decent reading would not be enjoyed with this zine. While the articles about movies and music are interesting, one cles about movies and music are interesting, one article is solely focused on 'fat chicks' A certain contributor talks about his experience with 'fat-sos,' and how they are 'monsters who will convert on your sensitivity just so they can get a rare snack most fat girls don't get... trouser sausage.' The author also whines about being mistaken for being gay with all of his forced sensitivity, and complains that he was hounded like 'a hostess twinkie.' Because, as we all know, women with real bodies and voluptuous curves are only in search of foods high in fat, and are sex depraved maniacs. and voluptious curves are only in seat of roots high in fat, and are sex depraved maniacs. Whatever this article means is the author's business, and he definitely has the right to say it, but it makes the rest of the zine seem very shoddy in comparison." - Sheena Allen

["Focuses on true first-person encounters with the unsavory, unwise, unorthodox, and unusual."]

[SEE ZINE GUIDE #4 FOR ISSUE #3 (1999)]

#5,$6 ppd, 112 pp, standard, polished, offset on paper, glossy cover, 1x/yr: "The ultimate forum for creative non-fiction, with a varying degree of subject matter. Some examples include stories about public-sex adventures, the Mutter Museum at the College of Physicians, being cast in a porn movie, seeing a snake in the toilet, and working in a nursing home. That list is far from definitive, though. Some stories are more interesting or more gross than others, but all are short works of brilliance." - KMM

#6 (2002), $6 ppd, 111 pp, standard, polished, professional, glossy color cover; 'True First-Person Encounters With the Unsavory, Unwise, Unorthodox, & Unusual"; personal essays about night ter-rors, converting to Judaism, leg shaving, getting arrested in Genoa, channeling ghosts, getting mug-ged, joining the Coast Guard, the Oscar Meyer factory, working at an occult shop, being a medical research guinea pig, hallucinations, depression, the Vienna Burial Museum, haunted places, street violence, NYC subways, working at Halloween attractions, writing for pom websites; letter from the editor; photos & drawings, book reviews

"Described as 'true first-person encounters with the unsavory, unwise,unorthodox and unusual' by the editor, Morbid Curiosity delivers the goods. I need back issues and future issues of this journal. The writing is uniformly excellent,the typeface is large, and it's full of nice B/W photographs of subway entrances, skinned raccoons, and human guinea pigs. Death and darkness, both physical and emotional,victims of depression facing their fears, vic-tims of violence reclaiming their humanity- stories of bad trips, bad days, bad friends and bad travel. Recommended to any reader of Re/Search or Feral House books. - Tom Deflumere

The writing is sophomoric, angstof the art is good. The writing is sopionion te, angar-ridden self-indulgence at best, though one of the poems made me think of September 11, 2001. "Goth poetry and thrift store reviews for the greater Santa Barbara area. Drawings of spiders and teeth, too. A good article on 'How to Beat Up Boys,' which, if you're a boy, could be seen as 'What to Watch Out for When You Cross the Line, Dumbass.' There's some information on runaways, and how to get help or help out. Sometimes life can be a big barget nep or nep out. Sometimes me can be a big bar-rel of rancid pork rinds, drowning out that glimmer of hope that exists everywhere, and those damn goth folks really know how to balance their hope and their despair. Kudos." - Pinky Royale

"Cut-n-paste pro-sex, pro-keepyourdamnmin-dopen madness from New York. Here lies a great idea. Ms. Pussy clips out all the articles from major fashion and women's magazines, and filters out all the negative liposuction, you're fat, buy our stuff, men-hate-you-cuz-of-your-wrinkles bullshit that fill the pages, and just prints the uplifting snippets. 'Don't let a little squabble damage a good friendship,' ''I've always been a bit of a cupcake freak,'' and ''There is no amount of thinness that makes you feel thin, if you have deeper, unretining, with chippings of our drivent scineck, and some naked pictures of women with some meat on their bones (read: healthy). If the world were really a beautiful place, then Pussy would replace all of those so-called 'Glamour' magazines that muck up this planet's consciousness, Pussy is for girls and boys, and if you're not feeling the angst/ politico vibe right now, get a copy of Pussy and just RELAX for a minute" - Pinky Royale

"Lots of fun collages interspersed with bits of writing and quotes. I shudder to think of all those fabulous 50's and 60's magazines cut up for the mere purpose of background fodder, though. A drunken rambling of a zine; I laughed in spite of myself."

but there is a good article by Steve Gulick called
"The Energy Crisis: It's Not What You Think."
Apparently, the crisis lies in Mr. Fat Cat's fear of losing money, so they bend us over the back of the hide-a-bed and sodomize us for kicks. I did learn on hidea-bed and sodomize us for kicks. I and learn on page 3 that "for every mile an hour below 65 mph a car drives, its fuel efficiency improves 2%--making 55 mph 20% more efficient!" Makes you wonder if Sammy Hagar really was behind the upping of the speed limit. I smell a Bush somewhere in that equaspecuminal shall a bush somewhere in that equa-tion. Also, the Socialists' seem to have a lot of in house bickering going on right now, so let's all sup-port them, cuz this system we have now sure as hell ain't winning no trophies." - Pinky Royale

"What can I say about this political zine? Well, this is what I can say: a 'must get' zine if you're into politics. Although it's a cut and paste zine, this zine is great by the effort shown in here. The editor not only focuses on the Asian politics but politics happening around the world. My advice to this editor is to get the PO Box address instead of using his home address as for there are lots of RED EYES people out there. You might find one day police raid your house. "Sort of like a novella, kind of, starting with the news that my sister is pregnant & weavingback through my childhood to look at the way I grew up & the impact my parents' drug addictions had on my development & my relationships with friends & loved ones, but also moving into the present, so I can write about my husband, my newfound passion for midwifery & women's health, birth & pregnancy, etc. there is also writing that touches on the swirl of events of emotions following september 11, including the divide & intersections between art & activism & the role of the artist in fostering social change. i also wrote about being diagnosed with depression, therapy, psychatric meds, as well as the writing class i took to try to figure out the way all this stuff-war, addiction, babies, family, home, art, social protest, love, suicde--are linked together." - from webpage http://ciara.diaryland.com/index.html Issue 32 has an interview with Vincent Gallo where he pats himself on his back over a hundred times. Luckily the issue also has an interview with the not-so-pretentious New Order. There are also great one page features on such artists as White Stripes, Clinic, Quasi, and Concettta Kirschner. There are plenty of album reviews which seem knowledgeable and even mix it up with a few book reviews. And my favorite article, which was about some day jobs different musicians hold. It made me feel better about my job at a record store. At $3.50 an issue, I recommend this zine. What I'd recommend even more is buying a subscription because you get a free CD with a year subscription ($14.95) and three CDs with a two year subscription ($24.95). You get to pick from eight good CDs too, full-lengths by good artists, not some cheesy compilations." - Ryan McKee

"Hey, all of us involved in the subculture are nerds, but by being nerds, we're cool because we're much more hip than most everyone else." Okay, so that grammatically incorrect sentence goes a little overboard in summing up the message that Scram sends out, but not by much.

This magazine made me feel cool, even though I read it in the corner of the playground while all the cool kids played basketball and snapped the straps of the girls' training bras. There are great interviews with Daniel Clowes (Ghost World), Brute Force, and Gary Usher on The Byrds, Brain Wilson, and the music biz. An article comparing Istanbul and New Orleans was interesting but lacked flair. The article about Scramarama (the 10 year celebration of Scram) made me wish I were unpopular enough to have been invited. Another article about missed concerts made me feel better about missing that one Nirvana concert, and that one Flaming Lips concert, and that Lunachicks concert where the lead singer was wearing a short skirt and kicking high. Finally, the music reviews are short, but to the point and informative. However, they're almost all written by Kim Cooper (the editrix), so if you don't like her opin-ion, then skip them." - Ryan McKee

"Skatedork is everything that I want skateboarding to be. In a world where Tony Hawk is as much a household name as Tiger Woods, we need this zine. Not to say that skateboarding doesn't deserve its Not to say that skateboarding doesn't deserve its place in mainstream culture. However, Skatedork covers the covers skateboarding with a love and sincerity that you don't find in the larger magazines. It reminded me what it is to be the underdog. To spend countless hours on a piece of wood with rubber wheels, only to be rewarded with head injuries & no date for Friday night." - Ryan McKee

This issue is once again jam packed with interviews from the likes of Big Digit, The Januaries, Treephort, Mad Caddies, Jessica Hopper (punk planet writer) & no interviews with Professional skateboarders... Damn! Actually, I really enjoyed the Jessica Hopper piece—I can appreciate interviews that are a little more in depth and biographical, not the "Tell me about you new album" or "How's the tour going so far?" line of questioning that only "true fans" can relate to. Highlighting this issue is Gabe commenting on the evolution of Skateline (going from a skate-zine to a music/art zine), "All Day Out fest" report, little birdy comics & the Feline Justice League. I can't relate too much to the comic news and reviews, but those, as well as music, zine & book reviews can be found within. Another fine effort!" - Jill Herbst

"Underground would normally be all one word, but then this free zine couldn't have S.L.U.G. for an acronym. They also have a Slug Queen center-fold and a racy cartoon on this issue's cover, making SLUG a likely stick-in-the-eye to the Mormon population of Salt Lake City. Judging by the amount of bands and venues listed in this zine, the counterculture appears to be healthier than you might expect in one of America's most conservative cities. Counterculture is vastly overrated, anyway; if a Puritanical Mormon majority drove 90% of the slam poets, performance artists, journal scrib-blers and other coffeeshop lingerers out of Chicago or NYC, who would complain about that? Having a large scene isn't necessarily synonymous with having a good scene, and having a small scene isn't necessarily synonymous with having a bad scene, as the look inside S.L.C. offered by this zine demonstrates. For those who care about our nation's scenes, that's awe-some to know." - Tom Deflumere

"A political comic zine that seems to be drawn pre-dominately by Tribune Media Services' artists. The issue I have doesn't have a number on it, but the title is World War III 2001-2029 and, as the title suggests, all of the content has to do with the September 11th attacks and the aftermath. Very pro-America, anti-Taliban, all comics are well drawn and satirically biting. My guess is that it was drawh and saturically bridge. Wy guess is until was published just a couple months after the attacks. Comics include slams on the Taliban in their caves, airline pilots with guns, airport security, anthrax, the need to shop to keep America going, gasoline, heroic police and firemen, military veterans, and, of course, lots of goody George W. Bush drawing. Black and white, newspaper format, I would recom-mend this issue. I found it while stumbling drunk around the bar scene by Washington University in St. Louis. I believe I paid a dollar for it out of a newspaper vending machine." - Ryan McKee

#2, $1 ppd/trade, 28 pp, digest, copied "The editor, Paulo, writes almost all of the content in Undumb, although there is a contribution by Lana Banana as well. Paulo has a great writing style that is very matter-of-fact and interesting, style that is very matter-of-fact and interesting, which makes Undumb a very good read indeed. He writes about being harassed by hillbillies, tips on dumpster diving, crushes/obsessions he had on two girls, and zines he's read lately. I really liked the piece on cops in which he wrote about situations he was in that involved the police. It wasn't the typical "I hate cops." He simply described the situation, good or bad. Most of the writing is about people reacting to him and the people he knows. There's also a piece on being singled out in 7th grade for playing Dungeons and Dragons and the absurdness of small town thinking. I suggest you get Undumb; of small town thinking. I suggest you get Undumb; you won't be disappointed." - Jill Herbst

"A glossy free magazine that I've never run across before. A decent design, some fashion spread eye candy, lots of ads for skate shoes and baggy pants and other urban essentials. Vice does try harder to deliver worthwhile content than some other magazines that pursue that advertising dollar, though, and this issue contains one particular article that makes it worth hunting down, a fearless essay on race by Christopher Prince. It's great humor, which probably explains why it was published, but it's also filled with the kind of true observations that are rarely aired, even in the more-tolerated context of humor. Find Vice just for that one article, or look for it on the web if Vice isn't distributed. uted near you. - Tom Deflumere

"This here is a little zine of pessimism, hope, animosity, blue-collar dread, and pharmaceutical ine-briation. The subtitle is 'A Periodical for the Refined, Blue-Collar Drug User,' and that says it all. No hippy-dippy bongo jams here, just 48 hour workweeks, shifty customers, and pills. There's a fond recollection of a weird, damn friend and a rant on the War on Drugs, in which the drug user realizes that the doomed operation is funded by drug users themselves. For a trade, you can't loose." - Pinky Rôyale

"A business card size serial zine about life after the zombie plague. It focusses more on the emotional turmoil & moral & mental changes caused by the armageddon than the gore, in the same way the Romero films are more about social commentary than blood. The first three issues are about two brothers trying to stay alive. Early nights is short pieces taking place on the same world in the same era." - 9.22.02 from webpage www.silbermedia.com/zombiekisses

Removed Zines

The following zines were removed from Zine Guide #5 (not included in this sixth issue of Zine Guide) due to the fact that at least 18 months have elapsed since we have seen an issue. Some are defunct, some are on hiatus, many have failed to send us their updated mailing addresses, and some probably do not promo their zine that heavily.

The issues of Zine Guide the publication appeared in is indicated after each entry. Updated info on any of these zines would be much appreciated.

#Hello and welcome to my first advertise- # ment. I wrote an article about trading # Zines that's in this issue of Zine Guide name is Christoph M=Y=R and I publish a zine entitled 28 Pages Lovingly Bound with Twine. My zine, like this ad, is a homemade Direffort. I handprint each cover with a linoleum block that I carve and every copy is, of covise, bound with twine. Subjects I've written about so far include: the birth of my son at home with a midwife, a 3 34" (the width of this ad) hair on my belly and being a "winner" in a 5 krace. I also write quirky letters to companies and I even did a comic with an ethanethiol-scented punchline. Do you want to read a copy? Of course you do. Here's how: I issue: $2 or trade 3-issue sub: $5 6-issue sub: $10 a dozen issue sub: $18. I'm in this zine thing for the long haul and to show it I'm offering 12-issue subscriptions. My mailing address will now and forever be: Christoph MEYER Post Office Box 106

- Artfly #3 - A comicbook & calendar

Hope to hear from you soon.
My son Herbie. A:n't he cute! *

Danville, OH 43014

Artfly #3 - A comicbook & calendar in one! Over 100 small press artists contributed to this grand experiment. Every month tells a weird story. For samples, check out www.bainst.com Calendar for 2002. $8.00

Artfly #2 - Collected prison stories written in the inmates' own words, then interpreted into comics. A great insight into the complex motivations and surprising depth of feeling in the criminal soul. $2.50

Far Flung - A sheep, a turtle, a rabbit, and a ring-tailéd lemur star in this tale of adventure. The four embark upon a quest for a new land, where they can be free from humanity's encroachment.

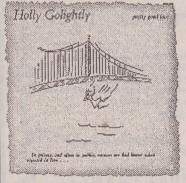

Twelve chapters, 420 panels. Spiral bound 8 1/2 x 11 card stock. Great fun for all ages. $4.50

Bainst #4 - Stories of peoples' striving to understand the world, and their place in it; women battle nature, bugs search out meaning, and aliens take over Earth. $2.50

SUBJECT INDEX

A NOTE ON THE SUBJECT & PLACE INDEXES: Even after hundreds of hours of work, this index is only a representative sample of what can be found in the zine listings. We have, however, tried to make this index as useful as possible by focusing on subjects specific to research, activism, of special interest to zine/underground culture, music, psychology/therapy, sociology & travel.

A HINT: If you don't find what you're looking for under one heading, look for synonyms/related words. For instance, smoking & tobacco, sexual abuse & rape. If a zine title has no issue number or date, assume the zine deals heavily with that subject, and most any issue will feature that subject extensively.

Reader Comments Concerning Least Favorite Zine Solicitations

"Any zine promoting anarchy and cynicism" - Bob, International Playboy Zine ••• "None - everyone in poetry works hard for little or no money - why pick on anybody?" - Ed Chaberek • • "All small press is good press." - Cranston, John Steiner • • "I hate arbiters of taste!" - Lana, Media Medea • •

"Anything printed on newsprint with too many band interviews, reviews, and formulaic articles. Oh, yeah, and anything that contains a 'scene report'." - Erica Satifka, Telegraph ... "Even shitty zines are at least zines. Find your interest and seek the best zines available. What's not to like?" - Anthony Rayson, Thought Bombs . "I don't pay attention to what I don't like." - Mandy M., Fearless Records ••• "It is not worth my time talking about bad zines." - Mad Mike, St. Paul, MN ••• "I'll just accentuate the positive. Thanks." - Jimi Cheetah, Cheetah's Records ... "I don't have any least favorites. Anything supporting metal is good even if it sucks." - Eric Lancelotte, Norfolk, MA ... "The few I don't like are so dreadful that I don't even want to publicize them." - Fred Woodworth, The Match ... "I don't feel like pissing on anyones parade." - Brad Bugos, Silly Little Trouser Monkees ... "I'd rather not participate, because I support all independent publications tht work in the spirit of D.I.Y. and free expression. We all know whih publictions hinder this spirit, so let's not lump in people's earnest efforts tht might fall short of perfection or coolness. On the other hand, if a big zine is really off the mark, for whtever reason, then that's worth noting," - DaveVarno, Run Aground zine ... "I don't pay much attention to zines I don't like!" - Bob Bruchetta, Santa Clara, CA ... "Anything that's like Profane Existence." - Anonymous ••• "While I may not like some zines I can at least appreciate their points of view and what they are trying to do. Therefore I have no dislikes as far as zines, with the exception of 100 Punks." -Travis Cox, F.U.G. Records/Magazine ••• "Closed-minded homophobic Christian ska zines." - Steve Gevurtz, Journalsong ... There are a lot of unitelligent, poor quality, and flat out crappy zines out there. I get tons of zines in the mail daily and have to go through all of them so I'm not exaggerating. But at the same time, all of these zines have something to offer whether its of value to you or not. The fact that something is even being said about music, books, art, etc and those oppinions are being expressed in whatever manner expressed in, that in itself is fucking awesome. A zine should serve as a forum of ideas and oppinions exchanged & expressed and in its bare, any zine does that. So there's no real need for me to list my 5 least favorite zines. I don't even have a list or know any off the top of my head that I truely dislike. Sure there are ones I toss but we don't have to get into that....' - Ghazal Sheei, Revelation Records

How To GET INVOLVED WITH ZINE GUIDE:

SUBMIT YOUR ZINE(S)

The only way for your zine to be included or updated in a future issue of Zine Guide is for it to be submitted directly to Zine Guide. THERE ARE NO DEADLINES FOR ZINE SUBMISSIONS. Just send it in. In fact, send two copies of each issue, as we now have zine reviewers & need stuff to send to them!

If you are surprised to find that your zine is no longer listed in Zine Guide, and you are still publishing it, send off a couple copies of your latest issue ASAP. Zine Guide, POB 5467, Evanston, IL 60204, USA.

RETURN A SURVEY / WRITE COMMENTARIES:

Surveys are located on the first two pages of this publication. Please feel free to remove, photocopy and circulate the surveys. You don't have to fill out a hard copy & return it to us via snail mail to be included—you can email your responses to us at zineguide@yahoo.com. In fact, the best way to get your survey selections and zine commentaries/reviews published in future issues of Zine Guide is to submit a survey promptly via e-mail. While we encourage people to photocopy & disseminate the Zine Guide survey, we must ask you NOT to email the survey out to your email list.

Please be sure to write commentaries for all the zines on your survey. Share your unique knowledge and understanding of each of the zines you list with the tens of thousands of folks that peruse this publication.

If a zine is not already listed in Zine Guide please include their snail mail and email address (if at all possible) on your survey. In general we cannot list zines that we do not have contact info for, and there were A LOT of zine commentaries we could not run in this issue of Zine Guide because we lacked contact info.

Finally, if you have already returned a survey in the past, please send an updated survey for the upcoming Zine Guide. Once again, we get more original insight from you that way, plus it makes Zine Guide's survey results all the more relevant.

WRITE ZINE REVIEWS:

We want critical reviews and analysis of zines for upcoming issues of Zine Guide. These are not listings, and these are not brief commentaries that folks scribble on their surveys, but actual knockout, dragout critical reviews. No length limitations, but we do require a minimum of 25 words per review. The zines reviewed do not have to be selected as "most favorite" or "least favorite" zines, and it is okay with Zine Guide if these reviews are also published in the reviewer's zine.

In exchange for ten reviews (of at least 25 words each) Zine Guide will give reviewers a free copy of the upcoming Zine Guide #7. For twenty-five reviews (of at least 25 words each), Zine Guide will offer reviewers a complimentary 4-issue subscription.

Get started now. Just email us at least ten zine reviews of zines of your choice (include complete contact info, along with issue number, cost, pages, etc.), and we'll set you up with free issue(s). If you can pen an intelligent opinion, email us at zineguide@yahoo.com.

WRITE FEATURES / CONDUCT INTERVIEWS:

We are also seeking extended pieces in any form, as long as it is relevant to the concerns herein (independent media/underground press). Email us with your ideas, we will pay for quality work.

OTHER WAYS TO HELP:

Collect and review your local zines/free publications • help get Zine Guide into your local libraries, record & book stores • organize & host your own local zine conference • open to any & all ideas • always seeking interns for Chicago office • email us at zineguide@yahoo.com

SINGLE ISSUES OF ZINE GUIDE VIA MAILORDER:

Each individual copy of Zine Guide (any issue) is $6 in U.S., $8 in Canada/Mexico & $10 outside North America.

SUBSCRIBE TO ZINE GUIDE:

4 issues over the next couple of years for $24 in U.S., $32 in Canada/Mexico & $40 outside North America.

Send well-concealed cash or checks/money orders (made payable to TAIL SPINS) to:
